Preface to Second Edition

The examination of our records for the preparation of the first edition of this book was begun January 18, 1904, and completed March 17, 1904. The average total number of students carried on our rolls (including graduates) during that period was 642,378, and of this number about 430,000—two-thirds, very closely,—had paid for their courses. Our records show that, as a rule, the non-paying student does not study, while, with few exceptions, the student who pays does more or less work. (It should here be noted that all work sent in by students is corrected in the order in which it is received, and that in no case is any student's record of payments referred to in connection with the examination and correction of his work.) It therefore follows that two-thirds of the total enrolment at any time may be considered as active students, including graduates. According to the conditions under which the original list was compiled, only those students were considered who had completed the equivalent of about one-third or more of a regular course; the names of a large number of students who had enrolled for a single subject, as arithmetic, bookkeeping, etc., or for a combination of two or more separate subjects, were rejected, but all such students are included among the 430,000 active students and graduates referred to above. The first edition of this book contained the names of about 54,500 students, which was about 12.67 per cent. of the average number of active students and graduates on our rolls at that time.

The stock having become exhausted it was decided to add to the original list, the type for which was still standing, the names of all students who had progressed far enough, under the original conditions, to admit them into the list. Instead of issuing a supplementary list giving the new names, these names have been distributed throughout the original list, and in their proper places. The number of new names is 21,016, making the total number about 75,500. The examination of the records was begun May 16, 1905, and completed August 9, 1905, the average total number of students carried on our rolls during that period being 798,960. Counting two-thirds of these as active students and graduates, the average number of active students and graduates during that period was 532,640, and the percentage of these included in this book is 14.17. In other words, the percentage increased from 12.67 to 14.17, or 1.5 per cent. during a period of but sixteen months.

Of the factors which produced this astonishing result only three need be mentioned:

1. A large proportion of the students whose names are here printed belong to the period which antedates the exceedingly heavy enrolments of the last four or five years, and the students who enrolled later had not had time to do the work necessary to admit them to the original list. Many such students were, however, able to get into the new list.
2. The number of courses has been greatly increased during the past few years, many of the new courses being derived from older courses by excluding certain subjects or including additional ones or both. In every case, however, each new course met the particular requirements of a certain class better than any older course, and consequently furnished a further inducement to study.
3. It is our policy to improve our texts whenever possible, and, in all cases, to adapt them to the peculiar needs of those students taking any particular course. In the furtherance of this policy we regularly employ a large staff of engineers and experts in the revision and specializing of our texts, which are thus constantly approaching nearer and nearer the ideal we are aiming at—the production of textbooks that will meet every requirement for home study, that will contain only such information as the student needs, and that will be written in such language and in such a manner as will best appeal to the student's mind. A large proportion of the 21,000 students whose names were not included in the first edition studied from the improved texts.

In conclusion, we may state that this list contains the names of a larger number of bona-fide students than any publication heretofore printed; it is an enduring monument to the value and efficacy of instruction by correspondence. We have every reason to expect that when the next edition is printed, as great, if not a greater increase in the percentage of active students will have progressed far enough to enable us to record their names.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS

Preface to First Edition

Since the persons who enroll in the International Correspondence Schools are, as a rule, young men between the ages of 23 and 27 years, and are just beginning their business careers, changes of residence are very common among them. It also very frequently happens that a student changes his address without notifying us for a long time thereafter. Consequently, many of the students mentioned herein have, undoubtedly, different addresses from that on our records at the time this list was prepared (January 18, 1904, to March 17, 1904) or have changed them subsequently. Nevertheless, they lived at the addresses given at some period of time, while pursuing their studies, as can be demonstrated by a call at (or a letter written to) the addresses herein given.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

It is inevitable that a book of this kind should not contain apparently many mistakes. Several of our Representatives have stated that they knew personally of students whose names are not in the book, but which ought to be there; also, that some names have not been spelled rightly and that some addresses were wrong. I know personally of at least one student whose address is wrong—the mistake being discovered only after the book was printed. The facts are these: The student removed from the state of New York into the state of New Jersey several years ago, and after his removal he never sent in any work or notified us of the change in his address. Hence, while his name is in the book, it could not be found, unless his former address was known.

We take every possible precaution to keep our files correct in the matter of spelling the students' names, and any errors in this respect are generally due to the students' signatures not being plain. Our Representatives could assist us greatly if they would write the names of all students whose signatures are not plain on the enrolment blank, in such a manner that the names could not be misunderstood. Several thousand students have become eligible for inclusion in the book since the names were last taken off.

A large proportion of our students complete Arithmetic and perhaps one or more of the other preliminary subjects. Having acquired the habit of studying and not desiring to spend the time necessary to write out their answers to the Examination Questions, they stop sending in their work, but still keep up their studies, using for this purpose their bound volumes. Of course the work of such students does not appear on our records, and their names are not included in this book.

In conclusion, we ask every person who receives a copy of this book to read very carefully the Prefaces and pages XIII-XXIV. If you find any errors in this book, please notify me personally, so that in future editions such errors will not be perpetuated.

Very truly yours,

J. J. CLARK,

INTRODUCTION

Written for First Edition

 OF THE marvelous educational work that has been done by the International Correspondence Schools during the past thirteen years, the public in general has no conception. Mere figures, gigantic though they be, are wholly inadequate to express the value of the work that has been accomplished. In response to numerous requests from educators and others as to the results of our system of education by mail, we have compiled this list of students who have done what we regard as satisfactory work. The list includes all graduates and all students who have completed at least one-third or more of their courses. The work involved has been enormous, requiring the careful examination of the records of about 650,000 students; the copying of the records of about 55,000 students; the arrangement of these latter into countries, states, and towns; and the recopying of the whole into a form convenient for the printer. It is scarcely to be supposed that in a work so extensive no errors occur, but every possible precaution has been taken to make the list correct and in accordance with our records at the time the names were taken. The addresses and records of all students here given correspond with those on our files at the time this list was compiled.

Since the 54,500 names appearing here represent only 12.7 per cent. of the number of students who had paid for their Scholarships at the time these names were taken off, it might be thought at first glance that the results of correspondence instruction were, to a certain extent at least, disappointing. Such, however, is not the case, the results being in reality simply astounding, when all the conditions are fully understood. In order to obtain some slight comprehension of the work being done by the I. C. S., from an educational standpoint, the statements contained in the numbered paragraphs which follow must always be taken into consideration:

1. The only requirement demanded of any student, in order to enroll in and to complete successfully one of our courses, is the ability to read the English language and to express himself well enough in writing for us to understand him.
2. The large majority of our students have little or no knowledge of arithmetic; 96 per cent. or more begin with this subject.
3. Considered with reference to the use to which the knowledge imparted may be put, many of our technical courses may be regarded as a fair equivalent of similar courses offered by the leading technical schools and colleges. Some of the subjects are treated more extensively than in any other existing treatises, and a large number of our texts have been adopted as textbooks by some of the leading technical schools.
4. The majority of our students have only a limited time in which to study, and a large proportion of them have not had time as yet to do a sufficient amount of studying to warrant us including them in this list.
5. With the exception of a very small percentage, none of our students have formed the habit of studying; they therefore consume a much longer time in completing their studies than they otherwise would.
6. By far the greater number of our students have no incentive to study beyond the desire to better their condition in life. The ordinary school or college student is encouraged by the example of his classmates, by the desire of his parents for his success, by the limit put on the time required to complete a subject, by the disgrace occasioned through failure to pass, by fear of being reduced to a lower class, etc. The correspondence student has none of these incentives (except the second, in a few cases) to urge him on. He usually has to study at night after a hard day's work, and sometimes under the most adverse conditions. His light is likely to be poor; he may be surrounded by a family of young children; his friends, his relatives, and even his wife may be opposed to his spending his time and money in this manner; and, then, in addition to all this, he has to combat his own natural inclinations to spend his evenings in an easier and a pleasanter manner.

7. For the majority of our courses, and for all of our longer courses, we have what we term Bound Volumes; these are nothing more than the complete texts and drawing plates for each course, bound up in permanent form, and they are delivered to the student as soon as he has made a payment on his course. Many students do not desire to spend the time necessary to write out their answers to the examination questions, and never send us any work; at the same time, they use their volumes to study from, and in many instances write us that they have been greatly benefited by their courses. The work of such students, of course, is never recorded.
8. On account of the fact that our bound volumes are not sold, many students enroll without ever intending to study—they desire the bound volumes for reference. How many of these students there are, and of those who study from their bound volumes, we do not know, but the percentage must be quite large.
9. Our students have an unlimited time in which to complete their courses; we have never suspended or expelled a student. As a consequence, even though a student may not send in any work for years, we still keep him on our rolls and count him as one of our students. We have in mind a case where a student removed and we lost track of him completely for seven years; then he wrote us and stated that he desired to resume his studies at the point where he left off. He also stated that he had been advanced to positions of various responsibilities until he had become superintendent. He had been kept so busy and his hours of work had been so long that he had not been able to continue his studies during the interval. He had finished the subjects of arithmetic and mensuration, and he had found this knowledge of immense value to him in securing his advancements. This is but one case of thousands, though few wait so long as this.

10. The large majority of our students enroll for the purpose of obtaining the information contained in what we term the "technical" part of their courses. A great proportion of these students are rendered very impatient by the delay occasioned in studying the elementary (mathematical) part of their courses. As in every school, many of the students detest mathematics and many find great difficulty in understanding it, and for this reason, a large number drop out that would otherwise complete their courses.

11. Many students enroll for a single subject, as arithmetic, algebra, bookkeeping, grammar, etc., or a combination of two or more such separate subjects. The names of all such students have been excluded—only names of those taking one of our regular courses appearing here.

A careful consideration of the foregoing will convince any unbiased mind that the results we have achieved are very extraordinary. And when it is further considered that many of our students are foreigners, with only the slightest acquaintance with the English language, and that in many such cases it takes months for a reply to a letter to be received, we think that not only are the results herewith presented astounding, but that we are today one of the very greatest educational forces in the world.

It may not be out of place here to explain the manner in which our Schools are conducted. It should be apparent from what has preceded that the ordinary textbooks used in schools and colleges would not be suitable for purposes of correspondence instruction. Such textbooks cannot be used for this purpose for several reasons, among which are: The majority of them are intended to be studied with the aid of a teacher. They cover a great deal more ground than is necessary for any of the special courses we offer. Again, the ordinary textbooks are usually too theoretical, and they demand too great a knowledge of mathematics and other subjects on the part of a student for us to use them in connection with our system of teaching. For these reasons and others we have prepared our own textbooks, and have adapted them especially to the courses in which they are used. To make it easier for the student when studying them, they have been divided into a large number of small parts, which we issue to the student in pamphlet form, and which we call Instruction Papers.

The Instruction Papers contain on an average about 50 pages each, although many of them have a smaller number of pages than this, and some exceed this considerably. At the end of each Instruction Paper, except in a few cases in which drawing or some allied subject is treated, we print a list of questions under the heading "Examination Questions."

When a student enrolls we send him the first and second Instruction Papers in the order of study, and if he lives a great distance from us we may send him four or five. With these papers we send full directions for studying the paper and for answering the questions at the end of the paper. Every rule and formula is illustrated by one or more examples immediately following it, and whenever possible these examples relate to matters with which the student is supposed to be familiar or to practical matters concerning which the course treats. At frequent intervals, examples for practice are given. The student is directed to study thoroughly the first Instruction Paper, and is advised to work all the examples for practice. If he meets with any difficulty that he cannot overcome, he is urged to write to the Schools for information and assistance. He is requested at the same time to send us his work on the problem as far as he can carry it, so that we can view the matter from his standpoint. We will give him all the assistance we possibly can, and when he has finally completed the study of the paper, and thinks that he understands it, he writes out the answers to the Examination Questions and forwards his work to us for examination and criticism. While this latter is being done the student takes up the second paper, and when we return his work on the first paper we send with it the third paper. By this means the student always has one or more Instruction Papers on hand to study, and he loses no time on account of any delay in the mails. The student proceeds in this manner until he has finished the course. We render him all the assistance that he needs, and even explain questions and problems given under the head of Examination Questions, if requested.

Any student that obtains a mark of 90 per cent. on his work is passed to the next subject. When a student has completed the course in this manner he is sent a list of questions covering the entire course of study; no answers are given to these questions and the student is given no assistance in answering them. We have no fixed percentage for passing the student on the final examination, judging whether or not he ought to be allowed to pass on the general character of his work. If we deem it inadvisable to pass the student we inform him to this effect, and direct him to restudy particularly certain portions of the course, concerning which he is deficient. Later, when we think that he has the necessary knowledge, we send him another set of Examination Questions, and if he answers these satisfactorily, we give him a Diploma or Certificate of Proficiency, as the case may be.

If a student has great difficulty in studying any particular subject in the regular manner, we give his case particular attention. We arrange matters so that his work always goes to the same person for correction and so that this person answers all letters or communications that the student sends us regarding his work. If necessary, he is directed to study a few pages of a paper, and then requested to answer certain questions that are sent to him, but which are not included in the paper. He then studies another section of the paper, and answers another set of questions, and so on until he completes the subject. Every possible pains is taken to carry the student through his course, and every encouragement that ingenuity can devise is extended to him.

A few words in regard to the scope of our courses will not be out of place here. Our courses are all prepared from a utilitarian standpoint; that is, it is always kept in view that the reason for the student taking one of our courses is that he desires to put the knowledge obtained into immediate practical use. We are not aiming to train the mind, but to give the student such information regarding the principles, theory, and practice as he can use in connection with the position he is aiming to fill. As a consequence, only so much of any particular subject is given as is necessary to meet the requirements for the course in which the subject is treated. Hence, in some courses the same subject is treated very fully, while for other courses the treatment is greatly abbreviated. In all cases we have attempted to cut down the treatment of the mathematical subjects until it covered only so much as was absolutely necessary for the student to know in order to understand the papers that followed. In certain cases, however, the treatment is very full and complete, depending on the purpose for which the paper is intended to be used. For example, the arithmetic used in our School of Commerce covers as much ground as that used in any Business College. Our papers entitled Advanced Algebra cover the subject more extensively than the textbooks generally used in colleges. In preparing our various papers on mechanics we have followed the same general plan as was adopted for our papers on mathematics.

What we term our technical papers may be divided into two classes—those which deal with designing, and those which deal with running and repairing. In either case, the papers are as a rule very thorough and complete. In many cases the subjects are covered more fully, from the standpoint from which they are written, than in any other treatises on the same subjects. In this connection we call attention particularly to our treatment of the subjects of Electric Railways, Interior Wiring, Elevators, our several courses in Shop Practice, etc. It is for this reason, and also because of the simplicity of treatment, that a great many of our students are college graduates, and some of them have taken such of our courses as correspond most nearly with the ones that they pursued at college.

As we previously stated, our textbooks are prepared by the members of our faculty, assisted by writers permanently engaged with us. Frequently, however, the original manuscript is prepared by an expert not connected with us, the work being done under contract. In all such cases the manuscript after being received by us is thoroughly revised, edited, and in some cases rewritten, so as to make it suitable in every way for our courses. Again, our textbooks are subjected to frequent revision; in some instances the entire course is revised, or sometimes wholly rewritten; in other cases only a single paper may be revised or rewritten; but in any case we are greatly assisted in this work by the criticisms of our students, and the difficulties they encounter when studying, as revealed by their work.

How to Use This List

NAMES and addresses of the students are arranged in the following manner:

The first column gives the name of the student and the last two figures of the year in which he was enrolled. The second column gives his address, and the third column indicates the course taken and shows the number of subjects and drawing plates he has completed, and also whether he has received a certificate of proficiency or a diploma. In those cases in which there are twenty or more students whose names are given on this list in one town or city, the name of the town or city is printed in bold-face type over the second column. It is then followed by the name of the county in SMALL CAPS. When the number of students is less than twenty in any one town or city, the name of the town or city in which the student resides is printed first, and is followed by the street and number, if any, and followed again by the name of the county printed in SMALL CAPS. The name of the state, or country in case of foreign countries, is printed at the top of each page, when practicable, and in the case of the Dominion of Canada, it is followed by the name of the province. The cities and towns are then arranged alphabetically according to the states or provinces, and can be readily located as soon as the state or province has been found.

In explanation of the third column, it may be stated that in order to distinguish our students and to tell in all cases what course each is taking, whether it is a revised course or an old course, etc., we give each student what we call a "class letter."

This class letter is usually limited to one or two letters, but may, in a few cases, consist of three letters. These class letters are the first letters given in the third column, and are followed by abbreviations indicating the number of subjects completed, the number of drawing plates completed, and whether the student has a diploma or certificate of proficiency. The number of subjects is indicated by the number preceding the letter S. The number of plates is indicated by the number preceding the letter P. If the student has a diploma, the preceding abbreviations are followed by the letter D, and if he has a certificate of proficiency, the letter C is used instead of D. There is really very little difference between our diploma and our certificate of proficiency. The diploma we reserve for the longer and more difficult courses, and the certificate of proficiency is issued to students that have completed single subjects or short courses.

In many cases Instruction Papers are printed in several parts under the same title. In all such cases the subject has been regarded as a single paper, except in a few instances where this was inadvisable. For instance, our course in Retail Advertising is comprised in thirteen papers under the general title of Retail Advertising, and identified as Retail Advertising, Part 1, Part 2, and so on to Retail Advertising, Part 13. For the purpose of this compilation we have assigned a number of new titles to these papers, so as to make the course appear to consist of more than one subject, as it really does. This has also been done in the case of one or two other courses.

In case it is desired to look up in the large volume the record of any particular student, as, for example, the record of T. F. Whearthy, Bayview, Mass., we look in the Index to States, printed on the page following the title page, for Massachusetts, and in its regular alphabetical order find the section number and number of the first page of the state in this section. The section number is placed at the top of each page, on the head line, opposite the page number; to distinguish it from the page number it is preceded by the printers' section mark (§). Consequently, a reference like § 4, page 49 (the number of the section and first page of the state of Massachusetts) is found by looking along the inside edges of the headlines until § 4 is found, and then through § 4 until page 49 is found. This directory, for the convenience of our Representatives, is also published in five small volumes; each volume has its own section number applied to all the states it contains. Consequently, when consulting one of the small volumes, the section number may be disregarded; simply find from the Index to States printed on the second cover page on what page the state begins. Having found the state, we then find Bayview and the student's name, opposite which is, in the third column, SM, 7S, 15P, D. The letter D, as before stated, signifies that this student has completed his course, but if it is desired to know what subjects are included in the course, refer to the index immediately following this explanation, and look for SM in the left-hand column. It is there seen that SM signifies the Surveying and Mapping Course, and that the list of subjects included in this course is given on page 9.

It will be noticed that the page numbers in this list are printed in Italics, to distinguish them from page numbers in the general list. Referring then to page 9, there will be found under the heading Surveying and Mapping the list of subjects included in the course. The fifteen drawing plates referred to as completed are included in the subjects of Geometrical Drawing and Mapping. Under the list of subjects included in this course will be found a note stating that Algebra and Logarithms were formerly included in this course. This note was placed here for the reason that some of the students in the Surveying and Mapping Course completed these two subjects and others did not. Hence, while both classes of students received a diploma, one class studied two subjects less than the other class did. In a few cases, it will be noticed that the name of the same student appears twice. This is because he has taken two separate courses. In all cases in which plates are drawn in connection with the study of a subject, the number of plates required to be drawn follows the title of the subject.

In arranging the names of the subjects forming the various courses, these subjects have been placed in the order in which the student usually studies them. In some cases students have been permitted to study subjects outside of the regular order, when this would not interfere with their successfully completing their courses. Some courses have been abolished and others substituted for them. Such courses are placed at the end of the list.

In a few cases, the class letters printed differ in some respects from the class letters in regular use. It has been necessary to change these letters, for the reason that formerly we sometimes used the same class letter for several courses. For instance, all the courses included in our School of Steam Engineering were originally designated by the class letter H. We have added to this letter one or more other letters so as to identify the course completely.

The list does not include students who take only one subject, as, for example, the subject of arithmetic, or algebra, or spelling, etc.; it also does not include the names of students who have requested us not to make their names and addresses public.

LIST OF SUBJECTS

The number opposite each class letter refers to the page on which the list of subjects of the Course represented by the class letter is given.

For class letters beginning with CS or MH and having four or more letters, refer to "Shop Practice, Combinations of Two, Three, or Four Divisions," page 15 of the List of Subjects.

COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

ACTIVE COURSES

Complete Architectural—A C; A

Arithmetic	Roofing
Formulas	Sheet-Metal Work
Geometry and Mensuration	Electric-Light Wiring and Bellwork
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.	Plumbing and Gas-Fitting
Architectural Drawing, 12 P.	Heating and Ventilation
Ornamental Drawing, 6 P.	Painting and Decorating
Advanced Architectural Drawing, 18 P. (10 Plates optional)	Estimating and Calculating Quantities
Masonry	History of Architecture
Carpentry	Architectural Design
Joinery	Specifications
Stair Building	Building Superintendence
Ornamental Ironwork	Contracts and Permits
	Architectural Engineering

Elementary Mechanics, Hydromechanics, and Pneumatics were formerly included in this Course. With the adoption of the present order of studies some titles were changed; the subject matter was to a considerable extent rearranged; and some Papers were combined with others under a single title, the scope of the Course as a whole being increased.

Architectural Drawing and Designing—A D

Arithmetic	Ornamental Drawing, 6 P.
Formulas	Advanced Architectural Drawing, 18 P. (10 Plates optional)
Geometry and Mensuration	History of Architecture
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.	Architectural Design
Architectural Drawing, 12 P.

Building Contractors'—A G; B C

Arithmetic	Masonry
Formulas	Carpentry
Geometry and Mensuration	Joinery
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.	Stair Building
Architectural Drawing, 12 P.	Estimating and Calculating Quantities

Structural Engineering—A K

Arithmetic	Beams and Girders
Geometry and Mensuration	Columns and Struts
Elements of Algebra	Statics of Masonry
Algebraic Equations and Elements of Trigonometry	Heavy Foundations
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.	Retaining Walls
Structural Drafting, 15 P.	Fireproofing
Loads in Structures	Details of Construction
Properties of Sections	Graphical Analysis of Stresses
Materials of Structural Engineering	Roof-Truss Design
	Wind Bracing

Complete Lettering and Sign Painting—D G; D H; L S; S P

Elements of Lettering	Formation of Letters
Lettering and Sign Painting, 34 P.

LIST OF SUBJECTS—ACTIVE COURSES

Sheet-Metal Pattern Drafting—D N; D I; Y; Z; DNA

Arithmetic*	Development of Surfaces, 5 P.
Mensuration*	Practical Pattern Problems
Instrumental Drawing, 2 P.	Architectural Proportion
Geometrical Drawing, 8 P.	Development of Moldings
Practical Projection, 7 P.	Skylights

With the adoption of the present order of studies some titles were changed; the subject matter was to a considerable extent rearranged; and new Papers were added, the scope of the Course as a whole being increased.

Show-Card Writing—D V; D W

Show-Card Writing	Letter Formation, 15 P.
	Show-Card Design and Ornament

The second subject given is not counted as a subject; credit is given instead for the Plates drawn.

Mechanical Drawing Without Mathematics—D X; D X A

Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.	Sketching
Mechanical Drawing, 19 P.	Practical Projection, 7 P.
	Development of Surfaces, 5 P.

Mechanical Drawing With Mathematics—D Y; D Y A

Arithmetic	Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.
Elements of Algebra	Mechanical Drawing, 19 P.
Logarithms	Sketching
Geometry and Trigonometry	Practical Projection, 7 P.
	Development of Surfaces, 5 P.

Draftsmen's Course—D Z; D Z A

Arithmetic	Sketching
Elements of Algebra	Practical Projection, 7 P.
Logarithms	Development of Surfaces, 5 P.
Geometry and Trigonometry	Elementary Mechanics
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.	Strength of Materials
Mechanical Drawing, 19 P.	Applied Mechanics
	Machine Design

Electrical Engineering—E W; E A; M E

Arithmetic	Strength of Materials
Formulas	Applied Mechanics
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.	Steam Boilers
Mechanical Drawing, 16 P. (2 Plates optional)	Machine Design
Practical Projection, 7 P. (Optional)	Principles of Electricity and Magnetism
Development of Surfaces, 5 P. (Optional)	Electrical Measurements
Geometry and Trigonometry	Batteries
Elementary Mechanics	Applied Electricity
Hydromechanics	Electric Transmission
Algebra	Electric Lighting
Logarithms	Electric Railways
Pneumatics	Dynamo-Electric Machine Design
Heat	Motor Design
Steam and Steam Engines	Theory of Alternating-Current Apparatus
	Design of Alternating-Current Apparatus

Formulas is not sent to students taking Algebra directly after Arithmetic. With the adoption of the present order of studies the titles of some electrical Papers were changed; the subject matter of the electrical Papers was to a considerable extent rearranged; and new Papers were added, the scope of the electrical part of the Course being increased. The option of taking Practical Projection and Development of Surfaces is regularly given to students having class letter E W.

*Printed under the general title of Arithmetic, in 12 parts.

6 LIST OF SUBJECTS—ACTIVE COURSES

Electrical—E F; E

Arithmetic	Electrical Measurements
Formulas	Batteries
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.	Applied Electricity
Mechanical Drawing, 16 P. (2 Plates optional)	Electric Transmission
Geometry and Trigonometry	Electric Lighting
Elementary Mechanics	Electric Railways
Algebra	Dynamo-Electric Machine Design
Logarithms	Motor Design
Principles of Electricity and Magnetism	Theory of Alternating-Current Apparatus
Design of Alternating-Current Apparatus

Formulas is not sent to students taking Algebra directly after Arithmetic. With the adoption of the present order of studies some titles were changed; the subject matter was to a considerable extent rearranged; and several new Papers were added, the scope of the Course as a whole being increased.

Until May 1, 1905, the subjects of Arithmetic, Spelling, Slanting or Vertical Penmanship (either one optional), Grammar, Punctuation and Capitalization, Letter Writing, Geography, U. S. History, and U. S. Civil Government were sold under the title of English Branches, First, class letter I A; the subjects of Arithmetic, Spelling, Slanting or Vertical Penmanship (either one optional), Grammar, Punctuation and Capitalization, and Letter Writing were sold under the title of English Branches, Second, class letter I B. Since then the student is permitted to choose, if enrolled under the class letter I A, any nine of the subjects given in the list; if enrolled under the class letter I B, the student may choose any seven of the subjects given in the list.

ABOLISHED COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

The Courses listed below were sold for a time and subsequently withdrawn.

Air Brake, Division 3—R Z A

Westinghouse Air-Brake Construction*	Westinghouse Air-Brake Operation*
Westinghouse Air-Brake Defects*	Westinghouse Signal Apparatus*
Westinghouse High-Speed Air Brake*

*Printed under the general title of The Air Brake, in 4 parts.

23

Air Brake, Division 4—R Z B

New York Air-Brake Construction* New York Air-Brake Operation*
New York Air-Brake Defects* New York Signal Apparatus*
New York High-Pressure Control*

Architectural Drawing—D L; D M; U D; L D

Arithmetic Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.
Formulas Architectural Drawing, 12 P.
Geometry and Mensuration Ornamental Drawing, 6 P.
Advanced Architectural Drawing, 18 P. (10 Plates optional)

Architectural Drawing—U

Arithmetic Geometry and Mensuration
Formulas Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.
Architectural Drawing, 12 P.

Bookkeeping and Business Forms—B E; X

Arithmetic Single-Entry Bookkeeping
Slanting Penmanship Double-Entry Bookkeeping
Vertical Penmanship Opening, Closing, and Changing Books
Modern Office Methods†
Either part of Penmanship is optional.

Chemistry—L

Arithmetic Theoretical Chemistry
Elementary Algebra and Trigonometric Inorganic Chemistry
Functions Qualitative Analysis
Physics Organic Chemistry

Complete Commercial—B A; C C

Arithmetic Letter Writing
Spelling Single-Entry Bookkeeping
Slanting Penmanship Double-Entry Bookkeeping
Vertical Penmanship Opening, Closing, and Changing Books
Grammar Modern Office Methods†
Punctuation and Capitalization† Stenography
Either part of Penmanship is optional.

Complete Locomotive—H C R O

This Course is a combination of the Locomotive Engineering and Locomotive Running, Division 3, Courses, given on pages 18 and 24.

Complete Stenographic—B B; A A

Spelling Grammar
Slanting Penmanship Punctuation and Capitalization†
Vertical Penmanship Letter Writing
Stenography
Either part of Penmanship is optional.

Drawing, Sketching, and Perspective—D E; D F; P D; O O

Geometrical Drawing, 9 P. Elements of Perspective
Freehand Drawing, 6 P. Perspective Drawing, 4 P.
Historic Ornament Color Harmony, 2 P. †

*Printed under the general title of The New York Air Brake, in 4 parts.

†Formerly not included in this Course.

†Not counted as a separate subject, but credit is given for Plates drawn by student.

LIST OF SUBJECTS IN ABOLISHED COURSES

Electric Lighting—E J; J J

Arithmetic	Mechanics
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P. (Optional)	Elements of Electricity and Magnetism*
Mechanical Drawing, 7 P. (Optional)	Dynamos and Motors
Mensuration	Electric Lighting

Electric Power and Lighting—E I; J

Arithmetic	Mechanics
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P. (Optional)	Elements of Electricity and Magnetism*
Mechanical Drawing, 7 P. (Optional)	Dynamos and Motors
Mensuration	Electric Lighting

Electric RailwaysElectric Railways—E K; J R

Arithmetic	Mechanics
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P. (Optional)	Elements of Electricity and Magnetism*
Mechanical Drawing, 7 P. (Optional)	Dynamos and Motors
Mensuration	Electric Railways

Fancy Woolen Weaving—T T

Arithmetic	Fixing Looms
Mensuration	Loom Attachments
Mechanical Definitions and Calculations	Automatic Looms
Yarn Calculations	Dobbies
Woolen and Worsted Cloth Calculations	Leno Attachments
Woolen and Worsted Warp Preparation	Box Motions
Plain Looms	Jacquards

See remarks under Complete Cotton Course, on page 19.

Inorganic and Organic Chemistry—O

Arithmetic	Physics
Elementary Algebra and Trigonometric Functions	Theoretical Chemistry
	Inorganic Chemistry
	Organic Chemistry

Locomotive Engineering—H C; H L

Arithmetic	Mechanical Drawing, 7 P. (Optional)
Mensuration	Locomotives
Mechanics	Elements of Electricity and Magnetism*
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P. (Optional)	Dynamos and Motors

Locomotive Running, Division 1—R MLocomotive Running, Division 2—R N

Locomotive Boilers	Compound Locomotives
Steam, Cylinders, and Valve Gears	Train Rules
Locomotive Management	Car Lighting (Optional)
Breakdowns	Car Heating (Optional)
	Electric Headlight (Optional)

Division 1 includes a set of Mitchell's Models, illustrative of Westinghouse air-brake apparatus.

Locomotive Running, Division 4—R P

Steam, Cylinders, and Valve Gears	Breakdowns
Locomotive Management	Compound Locomotives

*Printed under the title of Dynamos and Motors, Part 1.

25

Mathematics and Physics—I E; W

Arithmetic	Algebra
Geometry and Trigonometry	Logarithms
Elementary Mechanics	Pneumatics
Hydromechanics	Heat

Mechanical Drawing—D K; D J; E D; M D

Arithmetic	Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.
Mensuration	Mechanical Drawing, 16 P.

Algebra, Geometry and Trigonometry, Elementary Mechanics, Hydromechanics, Pneumatics, and Heat, were for a time included in this Course. Students having class letter M D and a number below 441 were entitled to these subjects.

Mechanical Drawing—D O; D P

Arithmetic	Mechanical Drawing, 16 P.
Mensuration	Practical Projection, 7 P. (Optional)
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.	Development of Surfaces, 5 P. (Optional)

Mechanical Locomotive—M L; R A; R B; R C

This Course included all the subjects of the Mechanical and Locomotive Running, Division 3, Courses, given on pages 13 and 18.

Mine Mechanical—M

Arithmetic	Surface Arrangements at Bituminous Mines
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P.	Surface Arrangements at Anthracite Mines
Mechanical Drawing, 6 P.	Compressed-Air Coal-Cutting Machinery
Mensuration	Percussive and Rotary Boring
Mechanics	Elements of Electricity and Magnetism*
Steam and Steam Boilers	Dynamos and Motors
Steam Engines	Electric Hoisting and Haulage
Air and Air Compression	Electric Pumping, Signaling, and Lighting
Hydromechanics and Pumping	Electric Coal-Cutting Machinery
Mine Haulage
Hoisting and Hoisting Appliances

With the adoption of the order of studies here given some titles were changed; the subject matter was rearranged to a considerable extent; and new Papers were added.

Ornamental Design—D A; D B; B D; C D

Geometrical Drawing, 5 P.	Practical Design
Freehand Drawing, 6 P.	Applied Design
Historic Ornament	Historic Ornamental Drawing, 5 P.
Elements of Ornament	Color Harmony, 2 P.†

Roundhouse—R H

Locomotive Boilers	Westinghouse High-Speed Air Brake‡
Westinghouse Air-Brake Construction‡	New York Air-Brake Construction
Westinghouse Air-Brake Defects‡	New York Air-Brake Defects
Westinghouse Air-Brake Operation‡	New York Air-Brake Operation
Westinghouse Signal Apparatus ‡	New York Signal Apparatus
	New York High-Pressure Control

Study of either air-brake system is optional.

*Printed under the title of Dynamos and Motors, Part 1.

†Not counted as a separate subject, but credit is given for Plates drawn by student.

‡Printed under the general title of The Air Brake, in 4 parts.

Printed under the general title of The New York Air Brake, in 4 parts.

Silk Designing—T M

Arithmetic	Leno Attachments
Mensuration	Box Motions
Mechanical Definitions and Calculations	Jacquards
Yarn Calculations	Definitions of Designing
Plain Looms	Cloth Analysis
Fixing Looms	Twills and Satins
Loom Attachments	Combinations of Weaves
Automatic Looms	Cotton Fabrics
Dobbies	Color in Textile Designing

Designer's Requirements

See remarks under Complete Cotton Course on page 19.

Stationary Engineers'—H A; H S

Arithmetic	Steam Engine Mechanism*
Geometrical Drawing, 9 P. (Optional)	Steam and Steam Engines
Mechanical Drawing, 8 P. (Optional)	Steam Boilers
Mensuration	Elements of Electricity and Magnetism†
Mechanics	Dynamos and Motors

Textile Coloring—T X

Definitions of Designing	Cloth Analysis
	Color in Textile Designing

Wiring and Bellwork—E M; J B

Arithmetic	Mensuration
	Electric-Light Wiring and Bellwork

*Printed under the title of Steam and Steam Engines, Part 1.

†Printed under the title of Dynamos and Motors, Part 1.
